Dear Valued Patron,

There is nothing as refreshing as the change of seasons, and we, at Child Welfare Tshwane, are likewise excited to experience the symbolic 'change of seasons' as we transform, adapt and grow in accordance with the times.

In our strategic pursuit and direction, we are committed to frequent and insightful engagement and communication with you, thereby sharing with you our journey of fulfilling the vision to protect, care for and strengthen our vulnerable children and families. We are devoted to providing you with frequent updates as related to the services we render within the Tshwane Metro area, and trust that you will find our information share to be delightful, meaningful and hope-building.

Since Child Welfare's inception 96 years ago, we have touched the lives of millions of children and families. In order to stay relevant, we acknowledge, believe in, and accept the necessity to change, and have therefore willingly flowed within these moving tides, both at an individual and organisational level. In a world of constant surprises, competitive advantage often depends on strategy – strategy requiring clarity of goals, actions, and methods so as to promote the effective execution thereof.

A heart-warming story

In mid-October 2013 the South African police service brought a child to the Child Welfare Tshwane Risk and Intake office. The child was picked up in the middle of the night, by patrolling officers.

The biggest challenge for officers was that the child was unable to effectively communicate with anyone and no missing person docket was opened that was a match.

Through research on social media, it was determined that the child was indeed reported missing by loved ones, and we were able to determine where his biological parents lived and who he was. We were able to safely and securely reunite the youngster with his next of kin.
